CABINET MINISTERS

Three Hebrews Who Have Been Thus Honored.

IN PRUSSIA, FRANCE, HERE

A Trinity Composed of Dernburg, Piquart and Straus.

ITS EDUCATIONAL RESULTS

In the Three Countries Referred to

According to the View of Mr.

Simon Wolf.

Mr. Simon Wolf being asked by a Star reporter as to the recent elevation of prominent Hebrews to places of political power and its effect said:

"If any one, twelve months ago, had foretold that in Prussia a Jew would be minister of the colonies; that Dreyfus would be restored and even promoted; that Col. Piquart would be minister of war, and that Oscar S. Straus would be Secretary of Commerce and Labor, he would have been looked upon as demented. And yet, all of these things have happened within the period, and the world moves on tranquilly, perfectly content, being inspired with the feeling of kinship for the ideal and truthful, which has made it possible for civilization to maintain its status throughout the world.

"I am sure that the bones of the Great Frederick would rattle in his coffin, were they to be made conscious of the fact that a Jew was elevated to be minister of a great department, although Frederick said that 'every faith should be happy within its borders.' Prussia, yet there is no instance where they were recognized officially or in military circles. It was reserved for the strenuous Emperor William to cast aside all prejudice and to place the man he selected, merit and capacity, and authorize him to cleanse the Augean stable, which had become a disgrace and scandal to Germany."

In France.

"France, which at one time stood at the very pinnacle of universal acclaim in its liberty and republican spirit, toppled over, and for a brief period the friends of humanity and liberty bowed their heads in sorrow upon hearing the name of France. But it was only a spasm, fortunately, and soon the good sense and loyalty to high ideals that marked the career of France prevailed, and Dreyfus, the victim of conspiracy and vile persecution, was acquitted and not only preserved his position, but in the very spot where he had been degraded, and his loyal friend, the gallant Col. Piquart, who, because he had defended the innocent and caused the career of France to be degraded and driven from the service that he had so grandly adorned, was not only restored to his place, but has been made minister of the war department.

"And so, in this country, where for the first time in its history, a Jew is placed in the cabinet—Oscar S. Straus—it is plain and manifest that the President, Theodore Roosevelt, who had already recognized other faiths that are guaranteed inalienable rights under our institutions, saw the justice and fairness of appointing a descendant of that faith which has so vastly contributed to the upbuilding and unification of mankind. And there is nothing remarkable after all that an American citizen of Jewish faith should be deemed worthy of being a consultant in the affairs of this republic. From the earliest date to the present, they have, in peace and war, contributed their brains and brawn to the end that this republic should be and continue to be the haven of the persecuted, and a home for happy men and women. Mr. Straus brings to this country one of the most eminent characters—an Americanism that cannot be questioned. While he is a Jew by faith, in every element of public duty he will have but one guide to be guided by, and that is his official oath, for the best interests of the republic.

Its Educational Results.

"And are these manifestations to go down into history without educational result? Is this evolution and revolution, political, moral and religious to be simply a newspaper item, or is it to be recognized as the impelling force of the divine spirit that always, sooner or later, comes to the rescue and makes nations and individuals responsible for their acts? May it not be possible that Russia—unfortunate Russia—that has for centuries been in the political and moral life Siberian in its scope and in its hope—may it not be possible that Russia, by this evolution and modern thought, seeing three great countries with which she is on terms of amity recognizing that element of its citizenship which she so cruelly persecuted—may it not have its eyes opened to the dawn of a new and grander civilization and become, indeed, a vessel of revolution, not in blood, not in looting, but a revolution in the interest of peace and harmony and good will to all men."

The Logical Young Lady.

Sir Mortimer Durand, at a dinner at Lenox, said of a certain unkind action:

"It was a logical action. There was reason behind it. But to be simply logical and reasonable in our treatment of others is not enough. A certain amount of kindness, of unselfishness, must be thrown in, or otherwise we are cruel."

"I heard of a certain, but cruel, young lady the other day. A young man proposed to her and met with a flat rejection. He seemed hurt and offended, and at this she expressed surprise.

"But," said the young man in a low, reproachful voice, 'why did you encourage me if you didn't love me?'

"Encourage you?" cried the young lady. "How did I encourage you?"

"The entire summer," he replied, "you accepted all my invitations to go automobiling."

"Oh," she answered, logically enough, "that was not because I loved you—it was because I loved automobiling."

Mosquitoes and Colors.

From the Baltimore Sun.

Sufferers from mosquitoes will welcome the information supplied in a recent consular report as to the preferences of mosquitoes for certain colors. They alight on dark fabrics in preference to light ones in the proportion of about 3 to 1. As long ago as 1841 Spencer found a white coat better for the wearer than a black one where mosquitoes are abundant. In Madagascar, too, it was found that they like to alight on a dark soil and black shoes, wearers of black stockings being the favorite victims. The natives of Madagascar suspend black cloth from the ceilings of their houses in order to divert the mosquitoes from themselves. Gaill-Vaquer, the French mosquito expert, confirms the statement that light colors are to be preferred for clothing in malarial regions.

Not Honorable Enough.

Lady Walrand, the wife of Gen. Sir William Walrand, M. P., described at a dinner party in Boston the life of a maid of honor.

"One of my friends," she said, "was a maid of honor to Queen Victoria. She spent a part of each winter at San Remo, where I have a villa, and one January afternoon at the Sports Club, as we were taking tea under an orange tree, a gentleman said to her:

"How interesting your life at court must be! And what a delightful diary you must be able to keep!"

"No," said the maid of honor; "that is impossible. The queen makes it a condition that we keep no diaries while at court."

"Ah," said the gentleman, laughing, "I think I should keep a very secret one, all the same."

"Then," said my friend, with a grave smile, "I am afraid you would not be a maid of honor."
